Super Meat Boy Install CODEX [WORK]

by the way, the codex is not a real thing. it's just something i made up for this blog tour. but all the things you see in this post that have nothing to do with video games, like the baby suit, the homemade seatbelt, the baby lasso and the self-repelling baby milk to be applied to the baby's face, they're all real. and they work. the first thing you see when you login to the forums is the database of life. this is a massive catalog of information about things that can be found in the meat world. it has all the information that may be useful to someone who was planning to build a giant mutant meat robot. it's also the way we build our lists of favorite photos, videos, games and other content. in fact, the database is the way we build most of the things we do on the site, and it's the way we plan to build lots more things. if you have a dream about things that can be built with the database, send it in! we're always looking for new ideas. and if you're interested in a variety of other things we do on the site, you may want to check out the codex wiki, where you can find out about things like our codex awards, codex mentoring program, codex contests, codex community content and more. my personal favorite thing that codex has built is our codex hall of fame. it's a list of everyone who has ever won a codex award. i'm pretty sure it's the most extensive list of its kind, and i'd love for you to check it out and maybe nominate someone for the hall of fame. finally, if you're interested in checking out other ways we've been able to serve the codex community, check out the codex archive, where you can find a gigantic list of every article published on the site, broken down by month.
