Each string contains a list of columns of a dataframe. I would like to choose a subset of these columns from this dataframe. My current solution is to create a dataframe from the list with the required number of columns, then select the columns from this dataframe. I would like to know if there is a cleaner solution, for example, something like a = ['a1', 'a2', 'a3'] b = [df[cols[i]] for i in a] A: As per my understanding, you need something like this: >>> df = pd.DataFrame({'col1':[1,2,3], 'col2':[4,5,6], 'col3':[7,8,9]}) >>> df.columns = ['col1','col2','col3'] >>> df col1 col2 col3 0 1 4 7 1 2 5 8 2 3 6 9 >>> df[['col1','col2']] col1 col2 0 1 4 1 2 5 2 3 6 Development and comparative
