the Lands Between! ENEMY RACE KATANA With its natural defensive formation, the Katana (Sword) race has a protective instinct and is steadfast in defending its allies. When they fight, their power is given to them. BALAD Balad (Shield) race lives in a world where the use of unbreakable items like steel and wood is most effective. They are enduring, wise, and cool-headed. WORLD: CASSIO Cassio (Spear) race is mainly from the Wudai Empire. The spear is a great weapon for charging toward enemies. TORONA Torona (Blunt Weapon) race specializes in fighting with the blunt weapons such as the shield. They are quick and strong, but when they need to fight, they are devastating. GUARDIAN Guardian (Mace) race is respected for its ability to control the situation, and they have power to appease their friends with food. They are best at taking down single target enemies, whether they be large or small. DAEMON Daemon (Shark Fang) race is the youngest of the races. Although they are feisty, their ability to overcome the enemy is great. However, they are also quick to get into battles. PROFESSIONAL PLAYER 1. Marisa Michelle
2. Wonder Princess3. 2. 2.

What is the Elden Ring?

- Countless wizened wizards who seek the power of the Elden Ring, the ultimate power within the Lands Between
- Shadowy figures follow you at the cost of their own lives: they are tarnished
- In the centuries before the dawn of the Human era, the Elden Ring was created by a great number of powerful wizards. As time passed, it rose with the mana of the land, changing into the Pillar of the earth that wizards follow in order to find the Elden Ring. Its aim was to unify the ailing world. During this time, a great number of wizards delivered magic into the palm of the Elden Ring, making the strength that extends into many lands and even beyond, depending on the age of the Lands Between. It is said that the lands of the Elden Ring will cease to exist on December 1, 1484 AP, entering an unknown world.

Epic Fate System

- Think of it as an enhanced Hero's Journey: the first journey, Existence, advances the protagonist's value and power. The second journey, Defiance, develops the protagonist's character. The third journey, Sustenance, strengthens the protagonist's resolve to overcome obstacles, while the fourth journey, Self Sacrifice, focuses on the protagonist's dedication to the values of his people. In Elden Ring, the players will gain knowledge and power through the four journeys of Existence, Defiance, Sustenance, and Self Sacrifice. The results of the four journeys will be shown through a series of endings.
- Continued in the game when your character dies in the story mode, your character will be reborn in the other player's game. You can continue your own journey, but your story will be different. Through this unique

Regulation of a putative aquaporin water channel by calcium in erythrocyte membranes. Aquaporin-1 (AQP1), a water channel expressed in erythrocyte membrane, is a member of a superfamily of related proteins. The characterization of the gene encoding AQP1 has revealed that AQP1 contains four transmembrane domains with cytoplasmic N- and C-terminal domains, and that the channel is activated by cGMP-cyclic phosphodiesterase (PDE) and by intracellular calcium. Here we show that, in a erythrocyte membrane, calmodulin associated with calmodulin-binding domain (CBD) blocks the formation of the AQP1 water channel induced by cGMP-PDE. In the presence of calmodulin, a kinetic study using small unilamellar vesicles containing EPR (electron paramagnetic resonance) spin-labeled AQP1 indicated that the AQP1 channel, in the presence of calmodulin, is preferentially oriented to the inner membrane leaflet. The incorporation of 15-deuterated-alpha-lactalbumin, a small water-soluble carrier protein, into the membrane of erythrocytes, indicated that calmodulin interacts with the AQP1 domain that is exposed to the cytoplasm. Calmodulin-induced protection of the AQP1 channel was abolished by the addition of N-(6-aminohexyl)-5-chloro-1-naphthalenesulfonamide hydrochloride (W-7), which competes for binding to CBD. Using a technique of spin labeling with the spin probe iodide, we found that, in a lipid vesicle system containing sulfonate or carboxylate head groups, the hydrophilic head group of AQP1 interacts with calmodulin. These results indicate that calmodulin interacts with both the N- and C-terminal domains of AQP1, and causes a closure of the hydrophilic channel pore.

Gaya State Gaya State or Gandaki Pradesh was a princely state of the former Kangra Agency in the Punjab during the British Raj. It had the headquarters at Simla and the ruler of Gaya was known as the Maharaja of Gaya. Surrounded by British India its activities were minimal and the last maharaja surrendered his state to the British Government in 1947. He died in 1963 and the state became part of India. History The predecessor of Gaya State, Jats of Dewal was, historically, a powerful clan and it had a most important fortified town of Gumustan, in the south-west corner of Gaya State. In 1367 it conquered a number of small states in the Potohar region, including Kangra. In 1575 Shaikh Fareiz, a descendant of the prominent royal house in Lahore, founded a new capital at Simla. In 1935, Gaya State became a British protectorate, with the Maharaja being given the title of 'Maharaja', because his status was no longer that of a Muslim Nawab under the British Mughal Empire. The rulers also derived their title from their capital Simla, which is itself named from Maharaja Jind Kaur Singh's nickname: Simvoula, which means "Bald Mountain". Simla was the capital of Gaya State between 1935 to 1947. After 1947, it was part of India and
